

RADIO ADDRESS OF HOOVER IS DESIGNED FOR WOMEN VOTERS

Revitalized Campaign is Being Kept in High
Gear

ON AIR AT 3.15 TODAY

Chief Executive Working On Speech to Be Delivered
In the Capital

By George E. Durno
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(INS)—President Hoover will keep his revitalized campaign for re-election in high gear today with a radio address designed to win the women's votes.

At 3.15 this afternoon, E. S. T., the executive goes on the air over a national hook-up as principal speaker of "Hoover Day," the latter having been arranged by the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee.

And, while discussions continued about additional campaign trips by Mr. Hoover, he began work on still another important speech, which he will deliver here in Washington next Wednesday, Oct. 12, before the American Bar Association.

The day following, Oct. 13, the President officiates at the laying of the cornerstone of the new supreme court building here, giving him an opportunity to again speak over the radio.

It appeared virtually certain that Columbus, Ohio, would get the call for Mr. Hoover's next out-of-town address.

From Columbus it would be only a short jump to Indianapolis. Great pressure is being exerted on the President to make a major address in Indiana, for political shots have reported the state is a red-hot battleground.

Others, who have canvassed the situation in Minnesota and Michigan, are urging the necessity of appearances at Minneapolis and Detroit.

How many of these states will be visited by the President, and whether they might be combined into one circular trip, remained to be seen. The executive and his political advisers were still debating the general question today.

This afternoon's speech, if plans of the Women's Division materialize as expected, will be the occasion of "radio teas" and parties all over the country at which the feminine voters will be tuned in on the Republican candidate. During the war, Mr. Hoover's picture as food administrator hung in countless kitchens. And his later strength with the women became a powerful political asset. Four years ago, a great play was made for their vote with apparent success.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hart, of Kentucky, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, will introduce the President to his unseen audience.

BABY ARRIVES

A son has arrived for Mr. and Mrs. William Ganther, Croydon. The baby was born this morning at Harriman Hospital.

"DOG-GONE"

(By "The Stroller")
Bellevue's police force returned home a few nights ago after attending to some civic duties. As he nosed his machine into the drive-way at his home, and as usual ever on the alert, he noticed a man acting in a peculiar manner. The stranger ran a few yards this direction, then some rods in that direction. Back and forth—on the sidewalk—onto lawns! Indeed there must be some dirty work afoot!

"Come here!" was the command of the officer of the law then issued. And with these words the stranger was off like a shot down Bellevue avenue, with the gray, uniform in close pursuit. Onto a porch leaped the wanted one, and made a grand dive for the door. But it didn't yield. Both were panting when the officer caught up with the one who had been in the lead.

Questions and answers followed in quick succession, and then the officer's attention was called to a dog which the stranger had attached to a leash, and which he had been engaged in exercising. The owner of the dog, it appeared, had just arrived from Chicago to visit a relative near the home of the constable. The dog must have its exercise and Bellevue avenue was the place chosen for the run. When the command was issued from the automobile the Chicagoan had visions of hold-ups, etc., such as are carried on in his metropolis, in day-time as well as under cover of night.

But the police officer contends only light-colored dogs should be exercised at night, so that he and others of that profession will know just what queer movements are supposed to be.

MAY ATTACH INSULL PROPERTY
(Copyright 1932 by I. N. S.)

Paris, Oct. 7.—Prominent Europeans including titled personages, diplomats and government officials lost "many hundreds of thousands of dollars" in the crash of the Insull Utilities Company, it was asserted today by Georges Casemize, wealthy French clubman. Casemize, it was exclusively revealed to I. N. S., is organizing a committee of European stockholders for the purpose of attaching the European property of Samuel Insull, indicted for embezzlement and larceny in connection with the receivership of his combine.

Formation of the committee was begun while Insull, the day after his indictment, mysteriously disappeared from his Paris hotel. No clue of his whereabouts had been received this afternoon, but it was reported he had fled in the direction of Portugal in an effort to fight extradition proceedings launched by Illinois authorities.

BRAKEMAN DIES

Norristown, Oct. 7.—Howard Shoe, 42, Harrisburg, brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, was killed today in an overhead crash on the Trenton branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Plymouth township, near here. Coroner R. Ronald Dettler, Montgomery county, issued a certificate of accidental death. It is believed Shoe was riding on top of a freight car and failed to notice the overhead bridge which knocked him to the ground.

DREAMS REALIZED; MAYOR QUILTS

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 7.—His dreams of an oceanic shipping channel, "Trenton to the sea," realized after more than 30 years of planning, Mayor Frank W. Donnelly, America's oldest mayor in point of service, had resigned today. He will retire from his post October 31, 1932.

Mayor Donnelly gave as his reason for his resignation the desire to devote all his time to the business which has been conducted by his son, Frederick W. Donnelly, Jr., who died recently.

REPRESENTATIVES OF CLUBS AT NEW HOPE

Announcement Made of New Hope Women's Club
Program

HAVE NEW MEMBERS

NEW HOPE, Oct. 7.—New Hope Women's Club conducted its first meeting of the season, Wednesday, this being in the form of a reciprocity session. Representatives were present from eight clubs of the Bucks County Federation. The affair was at the home of the local president, Mrs. William Tinsman.

The hostess presented the visiting presidents, this being followed by transaction of business.

Mrs. J. Howard Paxson, chairman of program committee, made announcement of the programs for the coming club year. The programs were made by members of the commercial class, New Hope High School, and in appreciation the club made a donation to be used by members of the senior class when they go to Washington, D. C., next Spring.

Heretofore, a majority of the club's meetings had been held in the lecture room of New Hope Methodist Church. It was decided to hold half the meetings this year in the homes of the members.

Miss Elizabeth Moore and Mrs. Frank L. Magill were appointed to represent the club at the Fall meeting of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs in the grange hall, Buckingham, October 28th.

During the afternoon Mrs. Samuel A. Jackson and Mrs. Charles Hines were welcomed into the membership of the club.

Mrs. Frederick B. Sanson, chairman of production work of the Needlework Guild of America, announced an all-day sewing meeting will be held at her home, Tuesday. Suggestion was made by Mrs. Frank L. Magill that a meeting be held to consider a play to be presented at the last meeting of the club year.

Members of the club were favored with two vocal solos, "Last Rose of Summer" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," by Mrs. Howard Kooker; and three readings, "The Birthday Watch," "The Colored Lady at the Phone" and "The Cook," by Miss Wilson.

Impressions of the Republican National Convention in Chicago last Spring will be given by Mrs. John W. Cooper, Pineville, at the next meeting, October 18. Thomas Marshall, who has been identified with the peace caravan, will also address this meeting on peace.

Out of Danger

Stricken while waiting to go on the stage at a Brooklyn, N. Y., theatre, where she had been making personal appearances, Lilyan Tashman, screen star, known as the best-dressed woman in Hollywood, is reported out of danger following an emergency operation for appendicitis in a New York hospital. Miss Tashman is the wife of Edmund Lowe, also a film actor.

TO TRY OUT OLD GOLD WORKINGS, BLACK EDDY

Ore First Taken Out by Indians, Then Later by Early Settlers

ASSAY 300 SAMPLES

Another Bucks county gold mining excitement is in progress in the neighborhood of Upper Black Eddy.

Sunday's Phila. Record described the "find" and developments as follows:

"There's gold in Pennsylvania's hills—only 50 miles from Philadelphia. "A deposit which engineers estimate may contain from $15,000,000 to $23,000,000 worth of the precious metal has been rediscovered at the little town of Upper Black Eddy on the Delaware River, near Doylestown.

More than 300 samples of the ore have already been assayed. They range in value from 16 cents to $1500 a ton. Next week the Centrifugal Recovery Company is expected to start work on a large scale at the mine, which stretches more than 50 feet down in an area of 84 acres which are believed to contain rich gold, silver and platinum deposits.

"The rediscovery of the Pennsylvania mine entails a story as romantic as any of the gold rushes of old.

"While the 'forty-niners sought rich nuggets, gold miners of the 20th century, equipped as they are with steam shovels, monster separators and chemical devices, are content to find an average of a few dollars worth of gold in a ton.

"Up in the Klondike they are mining earth which is worth approximately 75 cents a ton. The great value of the Pennsylvania mine can be seen from the fact that the 300 samples so far assayed show an average of $15.50 a ton. And the richest deposits, those farthest down in the earth, have not yet been touched.

"Long years ago, gold mining was done on a large scale in Pennsylvania. The first gold discovered in America was not mined out in the California hills but in the gold vein of the Appalachian Mountains here in the East. It is part of this very vein which runs through Upper Black Eddy.

"About four years ago Joe E. Weaver, who, in the course of a long career as artist, newspaper man and chemist, had also spent many months panning gold in the western part of the United States and the Philippines, happened by Glen Farm Inn at Upper Black Eddy. He had heard of an old mine in this region and upon examining the soil rather superficially, he became convinced that it contained remarkable mineral deposits.

"Residents told Weaver that the district known as the old Penn grant, known as Nockamixon, and that in pre-Revolutionary times, the Williams brothers, Benjamin and Joshua, had mined gold here with the aid of an old Aastra mill.

"After I realized the great value of the deposit," Weaver explained, "I went to the yellowed records in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, Doylestown. There I discovered that the legend was based on absolute truth.

"Right here the Williams Brothers had ground the soil with their primitive mill, pulled by a mule. In fact that old mill is there today, under water. I found that the tract was originally part of a 500 acre plantation. Before the Williams brothers came, the Indians, both the Delaware and Nockamixon tribes, had carried gold from here and taken it up along the Lackawanna Trail to exchange it for fire water.

"Then the Williams brothers arrived. They built the very house in which I now do my assaying. Alongside this old house runs the very road (Continued on Page 6)

SECURED AT CO. SEAT

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 7.—Over 50 per cent of the 142 couples who were granted marriage licenses in Bucks county during September were not married by ministers. The docket in the office of the Clerk of Orphans' Court of Bucks county shows that 74 returns of marriage licenses were made by Justices of the Peace, a burgoess and one judge. Quite a few of the licenses granted in September have not been returned so that the percentage of non-clergyman marriages will be increased before the docket of the month is completed.

The docket shows that forty-nine of the weddings were performed in Doylestown, sixteen of which were performed by clergymen.

Exactly 77.1 per cent of the applicants in September were non-residents of Bucks county, an unusually high percentage. Forty-six of the applicants came from the city of Trenton while fifty-one others came from Philadelphia. In addition to Pennsylvania the applicants came from New Jersey, West Virginia, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Florida.

Sixteen of the female applicants and ten of the male applicants had been married once before. There were eight divorced men and six divorced women among the applicants. The youngest divorcee was 21-year-old Philadelphia woman, who obtained a divorce from her first husband last August.

Eighty-seven of the 142 female applicants told the marriage license clerk they had occupations other than housework. In the professional field, nurses topped all others in the number of applicants.

One divorced man of fifty-seven secured a license to marry a girl of 29. A license was also granted to a divorced man of seventy-three, who secured a license to wed a woman of sixty-seven who had divorced her husband.

Only five of the male applicants were under twenty-one but twenty-six of the females had not reached that age. The popular age during September seemed to be between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-five for seventy-six males and eighty-one females.

Bristol furnished ten applicants while Quakertown was second with eight. Morrisville produced six applicants while Doylestown and Sellersville each had four. There were no applications issued to residents of Newtown and New Hope in September.

This plan of enlargement leaves the company with the entire northern half of its lot for a projected knitting mill, which is part of the company's plan for future expansion.

Since the new owners took possession of the mill a little more than a year ago, extensive alterations and improvements have been made a number of times, including the installation of new machinery valued at thousands of dollars.

An additional generator was added to the electrical plant in the mill, but this did not provide sufficient current for its growing needs, and the firm now purchases current for some of its equipment from the Perkasio municipal plant. Electrically operated humidifiers which automatically control the temperature and humidity of the air in the plant have been installed, and electricians are now revamping the entire lighting system.

After a brief period of disagreement the wages of the men working on the night shift were boosted slightly. A conference was held between the men and the management, and the night rate was increased from twenty-five to twenty-seven cents an hour, and the day rate from twenty-five to twenty-six cents.

Sought as Mentor

Albie Booth, former captain of Yale football team, for whose services as coach the University of Mexico is said to be dickering. Two years ago when the university took up the grid game, Reginald Root, another ex-Yale star, was the coach. Booth, who earned the title, "Yale's Mighty Midget," is now assistant coach at his alma mater.

LESS THAN HALF ARE MARRIED BY MINISTERS

Over 50% of Licenses in September Returned by Justices

U. OF P. OFFERS COURSES, MORRISVILLE, BENSALEM

Sessions Once Weekly at Each Place; Teachers Urged To Pursue These Studies

A READING COMMITTEE

The University of Pennsylvania will again this year offer regular courses at Morrisville and Bensalem. At the former place they will commence at four p. m., each Tuesday; and at Bensalem high school the sessions each Wednesday will be at the same hour.

The needs of the secondary and elementary teachers will be met in these instructions, and from the office of the county superintendent urgent requests have gone out to all teachers in those areas to consider the advisability of pursuing such courses.

Within the next month it is expected that all county schools will have eliminated "European Background" from the sixth grade. This material will hereafter be required in the seventh grade.

Announcement has been made of a committee which will study particularly those library books which the pupils like to read. Members of the committee will summarize student opinions. William A. Thomas, supervising principal of Langhorne-Middletown school district, is chairman.

Other members of the committee named to date are: Elizabeth Wright, Morrisville; Gladys Meriote, Warwick; Edna Etter, Doylestown; Anna Moyer, Lower Makefield; Helen Kaufman, Siles; Mildred Unruh, Newtown; Miss VanSant, Richboro; Anne Boyd, Quakertown; Mildred Rossiter, Upper Makefield; and Ada Thut, Doylestown Township.

Two More School Rooms At Edgely Nearly Ready

Arthur Wilkinson, president, was in the chair during transaction of business of Bristol Township school directors at the Maple Shade building last evening. All directors attended.

It was announced that the two additional rooms being fitted up in the basement of Edgely school will be ready for occupancy within a week, thus relieving crowded conditions in that section considerably. With the use of two more rooms, accommodating 80 pupils, all students at Edgely school will be on full time. Generally crowded conditions are still noticeable at the other structures.

CLAYTON ESTATE IS BEQUEATHED TO KIN AND FRIENDS

Son-in-Law of Marietta Clayton Named Executor of $7,000 Estate

THE KELLY ESTATE

Former Clerk of County Commissioners Leaves Bequests for Wife

The $7,000 estate of Marietta Clayton, Bensalem Township, who died on June 29th, will be distributed among relatives and friends with bequests of silver, clothing and jewelry for each of them. Benjamin Barcalow, a son-in-law, was named executor.

Edward Kelly was granted letters of administration in the estate of Winifred Kelly, Bristol, amounting to $2100.

Mrs. Agnes M. Cadwallader was bequeathed the estate of her husband, Washington Cadwallader, former clerk to the County Commissioners of this county. It was learned today after his will was probated in the Register of Wills' office at Doylestown. Mr. Cadwallader, who was identified with the affairs of the county and court house for years, died September 7.

Bequests of books, jewelry and furniture were contained in the will of Clinton Lerch, of Tinicum, who died at his home after a short illness. To a son, Ezra, he bequeathed the family Bible, and to his widow, Catharine, six cane seated chairs and a corner cupboard.

A grandson, Clinton Lerch, who is a namesake, will receive $25, and Herman Lerch was given his father's diaries and books. The estate was valued at close to $4,000.

Nieces and nephews were the heirs included in the will of Rachel L. Minister, of Langhorne, and will share in the $5,000 estate, it was revealed today. Bequests ranging from $1,000 to $100 were contained in the will. To Grace Pryor, the testatrix gave $3,000, and to William Pryor, a nephew, $1,000. Additional bequests of china, silverware and jewelry were made to William T. Maple, Grace Pryor and Grace Ambler. The latter received a bequest of $500 outright.

Tentative provision for a trust fund valued at $5,000 to be given to St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Newtown was made by Verde M. Bowen, of Lower Makefield, who died August 14, and left an estate valued at $4750. The bequest, it was explained, will be turned over to the parish upon the death of certain heirs mentioned in the will.

Without direct heirs or property in this country, the will of Micheline Russett, of Plumsteadville, who died in the State Hospital in Norristown on June 3, directed that his property, either personal or real, be sent to Italy, where, it was stated, the testator had real estate.

With the exception of the gift of $100 to a nephew, William H. Strouse, the estate of Benjamin Steeley, of Perkasio, will go intact to his widow, Lenna Steeley. According to the will, Mrs. Steeley will have a life right in the house in which she now lives.

Lewis Claxton, a son, was bequeathed the farm of his father, Thomas B. Claxton, who died September 6, according to the will probated here. Mrs. Martha Claxton, widow of the Wrightstown testator, was given the sum of $100, and a daughter, Frances C. Kirk, also shared in the will.

In the estate of Herbert Mindler, of Riegelsville, letters of administration were granted to Carrie Mindler, amounting to $150. John H. Nixon was granted the letters of administration in the estate of John R. Smith, of Hilltown. Letters of administration were granted to Gladys Hillegas in the estate of Erwin S. Hillegas, of Quakertown, $500.

In the estate of Jennie Fox, of Chalfont, letters of administration were granted to Clinton Fox amounting to $171.11. Edward Diamond was granted the letters of administration in the estate of John Diamond, of Bristol, amounting to $750. In the estate of Helen Silber, of Bristol, letters of administration were granted amounting to $250.

Robert E. Ackerman, of Quakertown, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Andora Ackerman, amounting to $70. Cecelia W. Root, of Treviso, who died in the Chestnut Hill Hospital, left an estate valued at $895.

A daughter, who received a bequest of $1,000, and three grandchildren, each of whom got $10, were the heirs of John Loch, who died on Sept. 13, and left an estate valued at $2,000.

In the estate of Sarah B. Paxson, of Solebury, Elizabeth Edwards was granted the letters amounting to $1200. Letters were granted to Emma Alvery, of Middletown, in the estate of John Alvery, amounting to $1900. John Rafferty was granted the letters in the estate of Ellen A. Rafferty, of Bristol, amounting to $500. In the estate of Emeline Knoll, of Perkasio, Frank L. Knoll was granted the letters amounting to $1400. Pierce Amey was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Jacob Amey, of (Continued on Page 6)

ON TRAIL OF GOLD GERM

Johns Hopkins University scientists with a $195,000 prosecution fund have, by circumstantial evidence, convicted an ultra-microscopic and non-filterable germ of causing the common cold. If they can execute that obnoxious microbe, they will deserve a reward many times that amount.

The evidence against the cold germ produced up to this time is mostly of a negative nature. It cannot be seen, cannot be filtered out of solution and cannot be made to grow and multiply in the laboratory. These are the reasons why it has been playing havoc with human dispositions, comfort and health throughout the ages, and why its nemesis is probably still far off.

Undismayed, the scientists continue their campaign to isolate the offending germ so that something can be done about it. And until more substantial certainties emerge from the laboratories, it will remain the most ironic commentary on modern medicine that the commonest of diseases is still a mystery and still out of reach of positive prevention and cure.

There is little solace in the fact that the scientists have proved that the common cold is infectious, something the laity has long suspected, unless that solace shall come from the knowledge that, knowing the facts, the public will be more careful in its sneezing and coughing.

PIED PIPERS

Engineers are especially blamed for making this world different from what it was, bringing on the industrial age, accentuating the machine civilization and disturbing the old "natural" ways, as if these are evils without compensating virtues.

By the secret charm of their science the engineers have helped to rid society of at least some of its hard and unremitting toil and to free it of those anxieties which like pests infested the home of people on edge of want. But those who have been released from these cares now complain of the price which they are asked to pay in noise, congestion, surplus product, great fortunes, unemployment and restlessness.

Wealth? But there never was a time when it was so carefully evaluated, never a time when it has been so generally used for the better things and so widely distributed. Industrial justice? Never has the world been so sensitive to it. Art? Architecture has evolved and other forms of art will find their way out. Religion and morals? The scientists and engineers will never be able to upset the truth.

The scientists and engineers are the Pied Pipers of the modern industrial world, leading the new generation into a glorious land. It is not a cavern of despair into which they are leading us.

All wages have come down except the wages of sin.

You'll notice, however, that the gold standard is threatened only during the world's crazy spells.

Another reason for not putting store teeth in show windows is because it isn't polite to pick your teeth in public.

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

"HE-MAN" SANDWICHES

I HAVE some friends who think there's nothing that surpasses a sandwich of raw chopped beef, sliced onions, and plenty of ketchup. I like it myself. But there's many a man who likes raw-beef sandwiches, who never gets a chance to eat them. You know, the ladies—bless their hearts—don't always take to raw beef.

Here's another good combination. It's more civilized but it's still an excellent sandwich:

Put a thick slice of corned beef on a piece of bread. Cover with shredded cabbage which has been well-seasoned with ketchup. Cover with another slice of bread—and there you are.

Most men like corned beef; it seems to be a male instinct! And try these sandwiches on husbands, brothers and sons:

Cheese Spread

One cup of grated American cheese, and one-fourth cup of ketchup. Spread between slices of buttered bread—whole wheat or white bread.

Chopped olives may be added to this mixture.

"Western" Sandwich

Fry some chopped onion in a skillet, and add one chopped ham to the onion. Then break an egg in the skillet, and scramble everything together—the onion, the ham, the egg. Spread on a slice of bread, cover with ketchup, and add the top slice of bread.

Bacon Spread

Mix together chopped cooked bacon, some ketchup and some peanut butter—until you get a mixture of good spreading consistency. Use on thin slices of whole wheat toast or on slices of rye bread for sandwiches.

The Squire suffered a bump on the head and a general shaking up.

TOWN BRIEFS

Mrs. Walter Cooper, Wilson avenue, spent Monday visiting in New York, J., visiting friends.

Mrs. Ruth Bassett and Mrs. Emily Orr, Pond street, and Miss Elizabeth Wilkinson, Jefferson avenue, weekend with friends in Philadelphia.

Miss Katharine Brady, Spruce street, spent Sunday in Bayonne, N. J., visiting friends.

Mrs. William Marshall, Beaver street, is spending several weeks with her parents in Lykens.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hensor, Beaver street, are making an indefinite stay with Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Titus, Fallsington.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

HE ought to go for a doctor, he ought to phone for help, rouse the house, do something . . . he wanted to run, to escape from that limp, still thing that wouldn't look at him, that might be dead! Dead! Dead!

His muscles twitched, he was bathed in sweat, helpless as in a nightmare, he couldn't move. "Crystal! Speak to me!" he cried hoarsely. He was on his knees, flinging his arms about her.

And then he felt the warmth of her body, the faint stir of her breathing. Breathing! She wasn't dead. . . .

Laughing and crying, mumbling brokenly, he put a trembling hand inside her coat, felt the strong, steady beat of her heart. He hadn't killed her! She wasn't going to die.

How long he knelt beside her, watching for the first flicker of her eyelids, he never knew. But at last the long lashes lifted, she gazed at him with clear, blue eyes in which there was no sign of either recognition or suffering. "You fell off the running board—forgive me—forgive me!" he whispered.

She lay watching him stupidly. Minutes passed. She closed her eyes again for a moment, and he cursed, and sobbed under his breath.

Then she was sitting up patting his bowed head. "I'm all right, foolish! Look up, look at me! Ralph darlin', didn't you ever see anybody knocked out before? You're a fine ex-football champ, you are. Stop staking! Good, gracious, I'm all right!"

He fought the nausea, managed to smile and to wipe his clammy brow.

"God, I thought I'd killed you," he said sheepishly, getting to his feet.

"It's a wonder you didn't!" she whimpered, laughing, and rubbing the back of her head. "I can feel the bump. Good thing my head's hard. But I forgive you 'cause you're sorry!"

"Sorry?" he groaned. "I almost committed suicide to keep you company!"

And then they were in each other's arms, his lips on hers. "You do love me, Ralph, don't you? You aren't mad at me 'cause I'm tired, and I spend all your money on drawing paper, and I'm a terrible flop and I won't give up—"

"Love you? Maybe I didn't find out how much I love you when I saw you lying there so still. Look at me, I'm a nervous wreck yet!"

She did look at him, long and narrowly. "I didn't know you were so chicken-hearted, Ralph!" "I am," he said ruefully. "Never could stand to see anything suffer. Makes me sick all over. Say, is there any more of that good gin I brought up when you moved in?" "Yes—in the music cabinet, in with the records. And I'll get the oranges. Start the radio, there's a sweetheart, and we'll dance. . . . I wish we had some ice. . . . do you think a little pineapple juice would go good? Ralph, darlin', come here and kiss mama. . . . once I said! Ralph stop—I'll spill the gin!" "Damn the gin—it's you I'm interested in!"

And while they kissed in the kitchen, and the radio blared in the studio the front door opened.

Avery Woodward's lips were French bread and a dozen eggs in a paper sack in his arms, stood blinking in the doorway. "Hallelujah! Hallelujah!" the radio blared. Dance music, throbbing, pulsing, vibrant with the jungle beat.

"You're spilling the gin, you nut!" Crystal's voice shrilled above it. "I said one kiss—just one. . . . Ralph! Stop!"

And then a man's muffled words. Laughter. The sound of struggling feet.

Avery Woodward's lips were pursed in a soundless whistle. His fine, dark eyebrows were grotesquely arched. With infinite caution he tiptoed across the studio, eyes glued on the closed kitchen door, and laid his bundles on the cluttered library table. He was smiling, something a little sinister in his dark, mask-like countenance, as he tiptoed out again, avoiding the slippery rugs and fat leather cushions on the floor. With deliberate malice he let the doorknob slip under his fingers. It made a grating, metallic sound. Then, very leisurely, and still smiling, he made his way to the alcove near the fire-escape at the end of the hall. The thickly carpeted hallway made a not uncomfortable couch. Half reclining, half sitting, he leaned on one elbow and blew smoke rings while he waited for Crystal's caller to leave.

He was so comfortable, and the view of the lighted city from the hall window was so entrancing that he lay there, smoking and dreaming long after the stranger had departed, and he knew that Crystal was alone.

But finally the last cigarette was gone, and he was hungry. He stretched long and luxuriously. "Ho . . . Hum!" He rubbed his thin, dark hair with grubby fingers. "Hoo . . . hum!" If he didn't move pretty soon he'd be asleep.

Crystal had kicked off her pumps and exchanged her tailcoat for a paint-daubed yellow smock when he entered, without the formality of knocking. She jumped to her feet with a little cry, spilling the chocolates she had on her lap. "Avery! You scared me! I wish to heaven you'd quit wearing rubber heels. Now, look at my candy, all over the floor!"

He got down on his hands and knees and began to pick them up. "Little jumpy tonight, aren't you? Nut centers, my favorite kind. The bird that brought them had some sense. I don't care for the glace fruit. I wish you'd tell him, sweetheart."

"I wish you wouldn't be so damn funny!"

"My brand of humor doesn't appeal, dearest?"

"No, it doesn't!" He could see the tears trembling on her eyelashes, and he pointed a nicotine-stained forefinger at her and laughed with his mouth full. "I knew you were nervous. What about?"

With an effort she controlled herself and went to the window where she stood with her back to him, looking out.

"What's the matter?" he snickered, peeping the last Brazil nut into his mouth.

"Oh, you know perfectly well what's the matter. Coming in and leaving that stuff on the table!" He followed her over to the window, hands in his pockets. "So that's it. Try to please a woman! Just try—"

"Avery I wish you'd talk sense once in a while. You know perfectly well that—that I had a friend in the kitchen. I heard you come in. It wasn't necessary to slam the door!"

"I didn't slam the door, dearest. It might have created a bit as I was painstakingly closing it. How was I to know you were entertaining? And do you always entertain in the kitchen? Must be one of those quaint country customs. I can't seem to remember you were raised on a farm."

"Eggs and French bread on the table. How does that look? What do you suppose he thought?" she exploded, shaking with the angry tears she was determined not to shed.

"What did he think?" Woodward snickered again. "That I was a good provider, my dear. Something, by the way, you have intimated that I am not. And then when I bring you a loaf of bread, and a dozen of the best eggs, hoping you will make me an omelette—"

They Shall Not Pass

CHEAPNESS makes only one-time customers. Quality makes life-time friends. The reliable merchant is more concerned with goods that will truly serve than with goods that will merely sell.

You won't have to buy so often if you buy Quality oftener. When you pay far less than Quality you've bought something short of Value; you've gained something short of Economy.

Buy good goods. If it isn't good, it isn't a bargain. The merchant that fosters only Quality merchandise does so because he considers it good business to do so. He is guarding his good reputation because he has earned one to protect. He is guarding the good-will of his customers because he has built up that good-will by safeguarding their interests, satisfaction, economy.

Quality is not costly today. Prices are low. Cheap goods are costly because their prices are too low to include substantial service and value.

WARNING

And a Protection to You

THE success of the Gillette Blue Blade has been so spectacular that imitations have appeared on the market. This was to be expected. The extraordinary quality of the Gillette Blue Blade won tens of thousands of friends overnight. The Blue Blade swept the country and soared to leadership. Men everywhere demanded this extraordinary blade and identified it by its color.

Today color identification is not enough. The quality and shaving performance of the Gillette Blue Blade cannot be matched but the color is being imitated. For this reason you must be careful. We urge you to insist on the genuine WARNING—Color alone is not sufficient identification. Look for the portrait and signature of King C. Gillette on the package.

Gillette Blue Blade. Avoid disappointment. Look for the picture of King C. Gillette on the package. It identifies the genuine. If this photograph does not appear on the package, the blades inside are imitations. Once again we warn you—look for King C. Gillette's picture on the package.

When you shave with a Gillette Blue Blade you get comfort hard to describe. You scarcely feel the blade as it removes your beard. You buy Gillette Blue Blades on our positive guarantee of complete satisfaction. If you aren't entirely pleased, return the package and the dealer will refund your money.

STATE NEWS

NORRISTOWN—(INS)—An unusual

suit has been filed in the office of Prothonotary Haldeman through attorneys Lazzaroli and Wright, in behalf of Marion Giampa, of the City of Malda, Province of Cantanzaro, Kingdom of Italy," against Elizabeth Gohn, of Abington, to recover $50,000 as compensation for the death of her husband, Frank Giampa.

It is set forth by the plaintiff that until the death of her husband, September 19, 1931, she was his lawful wife and that they were the parents of four minor children, Frank, 20, Dom-ing, 17, Anthony, 12, and Giovanni, 2.

The latter three were residing with their mother in Italy, while Frank resided with his father near Willow Grove.

Giampa was walking across the York Road near the intersection of Rubicon avenue when he was struck and run down by an auto operated by the defendant. The mishap occurred September 19, 1931, and Giampa died a short time later. Mrs. Giampa sets forth.

As a result, Mrs. Giampa claims she was put to great expense for the funeral and she and her children have lost his support.

It's Smart to Set a Good Table

Simple Menus That Are Smart and Delicious

The mere expenditure of money does not assure an attractively set table nor a delicious meal. Taste in arranging the table decorations and great care expended on the planning of a simple menu often result in a far more successful supper or dinner party. There are some dishes so tempting in themselves that they need few additions to make them absolutely satisfying and if they are served at a table that harmonizes with their general character the hostess who serves them will find herself with an established reputation as an exceptional cook. The two menus that follow are typical.

An Italian Dinner

Italy and spaghetti are synonymous in many American minds, and when such spaghetti as this is served the reputation of Italy as a source of delicious foods is enhanced. There are other versions of this savory dish—but few more tempting. The first step in the preparation of this dish is the slow, careful cooking of the sauce.

Cottage Cheese Displays its Versatility

Cottage cheese, so delicious in itself may be used in a variety of ways that may be unfamiliar to the housewife. It is one of the finest and most healthful foods containing, as it does, the protein part of the milk. For this reason it may substitute for meat or eggs at a luncheon or supper.

There are two ways of buying cottage cheese, un-mixed or mixed with cream ready for serving. The un-mixed is cheaper, and may be used for some dishes, though usually it is utilized in the mixed form.

Perhaps you have never considered it as a filling for sandwiches, but it may assume a most appetizing aspect, served in this way:

Cottage Cheese Sandwich Filling

½ cup cottage cheese
2 tablespoons catsup
2 tablespoons pickle relish
½ teaspoon salt

ELLEN EVANS FOOD TALKS

Spaghetti Sauce For Four People

One and one-half pounds of round steak, ground medium fine and browned in butter until every particle of the meat is separated but not too deeply browned. Over this is poured the strained contents of one large can of tomatoes and two cups of water. Add two cloves of garlic and one leaf of mace. Salt and pepper to taste. Bring to a boil and then turn down the flame to its lowest possible point. Cook the sauce from five to six hours, stir occasionally and add water as needed to keep the sauce moderately thin. One-half hour before serving add two tablespoons of grated Italian or strong domestic cheese.

About three-quarters of an hour before serving cook the contents of one box of spaghetti. The spaghetti must be immersed in rapidly boiling salted water. When tender drain and rinse with cold water. Place in the serving dish and blend with the sauce. Serve with bowls of grated cheese and a salad made of lettuce tossed in a bowl with garlic dressing.

This dressing is made by mixing two-thirds cup of salad oil with one-third cup vinegar or lemon juice, add one crushed clove of garlic, one teaspoon dry mustard, two teaspoons sugar, salt and pepper. Let the garlic stand in the dressing one hour before serving. Remove and beat dressing and add to torn lettuce. Toss with salad knife and fork until every leaf glistens. Serve from the salad bowl at the table.

Crusty bread, partially sliced, but served in the loaf so that pieces may be broken from it, complete the first course. The dessert should consist of fruit or some very tart ice such as lemon or pineapple.

A New England Dinner

Boston Baked Beans

This dinner comes from quite a different locality but it is as delicious and satisfying as a meal could well be, and so very inexpensive that its moderate budget will suggest its frequent use.

The quantities given will serve four people and may be increased as necessary. Soak one pound of dry navy beans overnight. Drain and cook in sufficient water to cover to a depth of about two inches. Cook until the skin will separate from the bean when blown on, vigorously. Drain and bring to a boil once more, again discarding the water.

Meanwhile prepare one cup of sugar blended with one teaspoon dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste. Roll one pound of lean diced pork in this mixture until every piece is covered. Arrange a layer of beans in a casserole or iron pot. Add cubes of pork and repeat with beans until the quantity is exhausted. Place four slices of salt pork on the top and pour over all one cup of molasses and sufficient water to cover the beans to a depth of about half an inch. Cover the casserole or pot and bake in a very slow oven or from six to eight hours. Add more water, as needed until the first hour, when the lid should be removed and the beans allowed to brown. When finished they will be several times their original size and firm and meaty—not mushy.

Serve with the same salad suggested for the spaghetti dinner, Boston brown bread and small sweet, or home-made pickles. Dessert in this case should also be light and slightly acid.

Tomato juice and onions may be added to the beans omitting the molasses for variation. But first, last and always you must remember that the slower the baking, the better the bean!

Beat in cream and add berries. Place on lettuce leaves and serve with whipped cream dressing.

Whipped Cream Dressing

One-half whipping cream, one tablespoon powdered sugar, three tablespoons lemon juice. Whip cream and fold in other ingredients, serve immediately.

Tomato and Cheese Salad

Place large tomato slice on lettuce leaves and top with round of mixed cottage cheese, dot with rosettes of cream cheese and cover with garlic dressing. This is made by beating oil and lemon juice in proportions of two-thirds oil to one-third lemon juice together with salt and pepper in a bowl which has been liberally rubbed with garlic.

Balls of cottage cheese rolled in chopped nuts or minced parsley are delicious served with salads made of pineapple or tomato.

Allot Money for P. O. Buildings in County

Two Bucks County towns have been allotted funds for post office buildings. Doylestown has been allotted $85,500 for a new post-office building. It was included among six post-office buildings in this area authorized by the Post-office Department yesterday.

To date, it is said, no site for the new building has been selected, but word was received from Congressman Henry W. Watson yesterday that the money had been allotted for the building.

Sellersville has been given $72,000. Olympia Club Moves To New Quarters, Dorrance St.

The Olympia Athletic Club, formerly located at Pond and Lafayette streets, has moved to its new quarters at 319 Dorrance street, formerly occupied by St. Ann's Holy Name Society.

The new quarters are larger and finer, including a well-equipped gymnasium, club rooms and dance floor. This club is interested in all athletics, mainly boxing. The Olympia A. C. is a non-partisan club and a membership drive is now on. Anyone desirous of becoming a member should see one of the following officers: Nicholas Meslan, Cleveland street; John S. Gavegan, Beaver street; James D'Amrosio, Pond street; Bernard Longhiano, Inlet street.

School Board, Bensalem Twp., Has Much Business

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 7.—The entire group of seven directors attended the meeting of Bensalem Township school board in the high school building last evening, namely: President, Percy G. Underwood, Charles V. Wenner, Jacob Scheufele, W. L. Williams, J. Harry Hartley, Lewis Reichert, and Richard W. Fechtenburg.

In reports made during the evening it was disclosed there are now 1,114 pupils attending the schools of Bensalem, this being 149 more than were enrolled last June. Over 100 of this number come from outside the district. Those in high school number 446. Attending to instruction and welfare of the pupils are 37 teachers, the nurse and medical examiner. The latter is now making examination of pupils.

The school buildings were reported in excellent condition, and the cafeteria met expenses last month. The equipment and space of the cafeteria have been added to, in order to better care for the students' needs. Four school buses are operating to capacity, and the routes of same have been approved.

The school board authorized the tax collector to collect school tax on the installment plan, and a committee will work out a method by which same might be attended to under the recent act of the legislature regarding this matter. The tax collector made the first payment on the 1932-33 taxes, these comparing very favorably with the October payments of previous years. The district's finances were reported in good condition. Permission was granted the Alumni Association to use the high school building for various affairs during the year.

MOVE FOR ROAD WORK

Harrisburg, Oct. 7.—The State Highway Department threw its machinery into high gear today to start construction of two thousand miles of road after the State Emergency Relief Board allocated $2,900,000 of State and Federal relief funds for that purpose. Governor Pinchot stated the allocation of the money for road construction was made after the needs of all counties had been investigated. The State Highway Department stated it was ready to start work at once an other roads to be improved would be announced later. The Governor specified the $2,900,000 should be expended solely for the payment of labor.

REV. I. WILLIAMS DIES

Water in Upper Delaware Reaches Lowest Mark

Abram Swan, Jr., member of the city commission, Trenton, N. J., says that the present low flow of water in the Delaware River has given the opponents of the tri-State water treaty proof that their objection to such a treaty was right.

"It is interesting to note that the contention of those claiming that the tri-State compact would be a detriment to the City of Trenton and the Delaware Valley has been vindicated," Mr. Swan declared, "as the Delaware River during the last month has demonstrated what the river would have been in the future, as the proposed compact guaranteed a flow in the river of 24 cu. ft. per second for every square mile above Trenton. This is the first time that it has been possible to demonstrate what that flow would actually be and it has practically existed throughout the last five weeks in the Delaware River.

"During the Summer and especially during the last month, the condition of the Delaware River has been very forcibly brought to the attention of all persons who have had occasion to cross the various bridges or to observe it above Trenton and from inquiry of some of the old residents along the river information has been obtained that it is the lowest they ever remember having seen it in their lifetime."

which they used as a cow path and an oxen trail. The furnace which I use for my assaying was originally the old forge where the oxen were shod.

"You see, the Williams brothers mined about 1773. Then they went off to the Revolutionary Wars and nothing had been done to the mine since then. Now we are continuing in an old line of American history."

The tract containing the gold deposit is part of 150 acres owned by Albert Ewald, who runs the Glen Farm Inn. The inn itself is of historical interest, because it is a restored Colonial mansion built in 1773 and added to in 1840. Today it is one of the show places of the neighborhood.

After Weaver ascertained that he had found a bed of quartz carrying gold, he made an intensive study of the ground geologically and chemically. The deposit of auriferous rock was washed down the Delaware Valley from the north many centuries ago, during the glacial period, and is part of an ancient river bed.

"Mother Nature is a Pandora's box," Weaver went on. "You never know what she has hidden within herself until the lid has flown off. This gold streak is the same one which goes through the Appalachians from Quebec down."

"One of the main things about gold mining is of course the process of assaying, which serves as a barometer of the mine ore. Fifteen years ago, it would not have paid to mine ore like this, because of the labor involved and because the present chemical processes for collecting the gold were then unknown."

"Today ore that is worth $10 a ton is considered very good. In the old days miners wanted only nuggets."

Right Into the Thick of It

By HARDIN BURNLEY

CASUALLY glancing over the football schedule for this week, one is tempted to say that three—and by an infallible process of logic you could make that six—coaches have their nerve with them these early October days. In the old days the powerful teams went in for early-season workouts with the weakest opposition at hand. The custom originated in the schedules of the Big Three. Harvard, for instance, would frequently start off the season by dancing merrily through teams like Maine, Middlebury, Vermont and New Hampshire State. It was a time-honored custom. The little colleges had their "big game" early, and the more snooty institutions had innocuous scrimmage sessions on several successive Saturdays.

Up to a few years ago, this custom was prevalent in the South, Midwest and Far West. But the little teams grew up, Frankenstein-like, and handed a few wallops to the squads which used to take them into camp. On the Coast, St. Mary's once offered only feeble opposition to colleges which were traditionally in the "front rank" in an athletic way. Then along came a fellow named Slip Madigan, out of Notre Dame, a pupil of the one and only Rockne. A few years back St. Mary's began knocking over not only one or two first class opponents a season, but everything in sight. Slip Madigan even traveled across the continent with his boys and trounced a powerful Cavanaugh-coached Fordham team. This week Navy Bill Ingram lines his California Golden Bears against Madigan's Saints. The football world will be somewhat mildly shocked if the Bears aren't sent into early hibernation. That's the way it goes. This week also Dick Hanley will send his Northwestern Wildcats, Pug Rentner and all, out against Michigan. Hanley has a powerful team. But even with Olson and Potter back to help Rentner in carrying out the backfield chores, no one expects Michigan to admit defeat before the final whistle blows. Michigan has a strong team, too, much stronger than the traditional October opponent, even for Northwestern. Last fall Tulane crushed all opposition. Many of the stars are back, and Ted Cox, as usual, has a well-coached team. But when the Louisiana boys take the field tomorrow they will be facing, not Pugh-wash or Antigonish or someone, but—Georgia. Georgia would be a fit opponent for Tulane in the final game of the season. So would Tulane for Georgia. They are as evenly matched as any two teams could be. Yet they are having it out long before Halloween. Perhaps it's just as well, at that, for it keeps interest high from start to finish in the annual pigskin era. In these times, or in any other times, that's something.

"a more pleasing taste and aroma"

Enough Turkish, but not too much, that's Why!

Chesterfield Radio Program
Every night except Sunday, Columbia Coast-to-Coast Network.

Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food. You don't want too much seasoning in food. Or in a cigarette. But you do want enough!

Chesterfield uses just the right amount of Turkish tobacco. Not too much, but just enough to give to Chesterfield a better taste and aroma.

Smoke a Chesterfield... and taste the difference!
